PEOPLE. CHANGE. PLACES.

In 2020/2021, multi percussionist Christian Benning initiated a very special edition of the intercultural project Dahusalem. This name consists of two collaborating schools from Jerusalem and Dachau and contains the Bavarian expression „Dahoam“ which literally means „At home“.

Benning selected three different pieces of music by three composers from different eras, traditions and cultures: Ludwig van Beethoven, Omar Khairat and Steve Reich. Three works - one work by each of them, written or arranged for percussion ensemble (Moonlight Sonata, Fatma, Mallet Quartet) - have been connected and then formed into the concept and idea of a coherent symphony. In order to complete that intercultural symphony with a fourth movement, Munich-based Arab composer Faris Badarni from Israel wrote the piece „Jerusalem“, combining various elements of the previous movements and creating an own work that way. Since the musician is personally rooted in all of these three cultures and musical traditions, he wants to express the idea of an acoustic walk through this TRANSCULTURAL city of Jerusalem with its own sonority, based on the diversity of people who have roots all over the world and who have been living together for a very long time.

Dahusalem stands for the union of students from Israel and Germany, attending the Jerusalem-Art-School and the Josef-Effner-Gymnasium who are annually working together on varying art projects. The students develop correlations between fine arts and music during the process of painting and drumming, in order to create a contiguous piece of visual art that will be presented in connection with the musical performance as part of the stage design. They create ways to express themselves by the means of art and become sensitive for the connective language of music.

The five percussionists Christian Benning, Felix Kolb, Marcel Morikawa, Godwin Schmid and Patrick Stapleton will premier the intercultural symphony in March 2022 in Germany and will perform it in Israel as well in June 2022. They got to know each other during their studies at the Munich University of Music and Performing Arts. First joint international concerts of the percussionists took place in 2012, among others in Egypt and Oman. This pure percussion formation was founded in 2015 as Christian Benning & Percussion No. 1. Since then, concerts have taken place in the Center of Arts & Media in Karlsruhe, in the Laeiszhalle in Hamburg, at the European Weeks in Passau and in the Munich Philharmonic Hall. The ensemble recently made its debuts as Christian Benning Percussion Group (since 2020) at Glocke in Bremen, at Elbphilharmonie in Hamburg, at the Festival of Young Artists in Bayreuth or at the Hercules Hall of Munich.
